

Hi D,

Happy Birthday! You are 21 now... Finally! Just to get it out of the way, yes, I really really like you and I miss you so darn much... I want to be there with you but can't.. This COVID shit hit us all so hard and was frankly very sudden and disappointing. But what can we really do? So, this website is the meaningful gift I could come up with. All the hardwork paid off and it looks good I guess.

So, I have almost put almost all the major things we did together in Delhi, and oh boy, for 2 and a half months, that sure was a long list. Now, lets just talk about us shall we? The most important basis of this relationship is that you make me happy.. Really ~~Really~~ happy D! You always try to help me, understand me, listen to me and care for me. I know you have to really try. I am the 12 year old kid who acts like a five year old sometimes. But you know what, I will always look out for you, trying to make your life a little better. You really are the highlight of not only 2020, but the past couple of ~~year~~ years in my life. I love our quirky relationship but thats what makes it fun and interesting. From the poop calls to the relationship constitution, this really is unheard of, atleast for me. For someone who would have puked at the sight of someone doing what we do, this is a major change that I cannot imagine living without in such a short span of time. But for that to happen,

PLEASE GET YOUR PHONE FIXED.

This is your day D! Enjoy.. As a token of my appreciation, you can have today as your yes day as well but you cannot block me.

I planned a lot of things before and during this lockdown but those were all about gifts. I just realized that it is very generic and anyone could do it. So I decided to put in as much as I could here, in our space. Btw, the idea for this came when you said the joke about me and sir being in a relationship as well. That is when it hit me, I should do something using my skill. One moment that sticks out, completely unrelated, is that when I came on call with you and I said bye goodnight at once to start with this website, you said and I quote, "I do not want any gifts that take away the time we have together"

That is literally the best thing you have said to me and it makes me so damn happy. So here it is, not a video.

So, things I like about us being together, first, you are truly an amazing humanbeing. You always make me feel better about myself. You always make me make better decisions about my day to day choices, and trust me, it matters a lot to me. You trust me, really try for what I want and listen to reason. Please D! Never stop looking after me, it makes everything better. Now, second, I probably will have to quote perfectly perfect lyrics but everything you have about you is cute, almost everything you do is cute. Not according to you though. Atleast I know the truth about you. Also, when you dress up! I swear you look stunning. Starting from the day we met, to valentines day, to my college fest, I have always been starstruck around you. You are really really pretty, and in your acceptance phrase, really beautiful!!

There are many more reasons, but the rest are for the next letter. I would want to mention just one more point. I would like you to know... No matter how different people we are, how different our tastes are in movies, shows, food blah blah blah..., we both will always look for ways to understand each other, give each other time to understand the other person. You might deny it but you are the one to have followed it the most, from Jacobell, to long ~~cutty~~ calls, to meeting everyday, to meeting my friends. How can I forget poop calls and shower calls. Enough about this for now...

I just thank you for sticking with me even after realizing my quirks and negative traits that I need to get rid of soon. I have liked you from day one, my job and last sem let us get closer every single day. The momentum was carried even though we are hours apart due to this covid shit and just through communication, our bond has grown stronger than it ever was. I was initially writing this letter because you wanted me to, but now, I am writing because I want to see that smile on your face. I do not have the capacity to give you 21 gifts. But frankly, I do not want to. It will be ripping off your idea and why would I do that to my cutie? I will give you any number of gifts I can not because it is your birthday, but because I like to see you happy. That is why I will give you gifts throughout as you deserve it.

You make me happy and feel better about everything wrong every single day. I appreciate that D.

Finally, Happy Birthday Darling.. Happy Birthday Maggu ...

Happy Birthday Dear Mahie ... Happy Birthday to you ...

Be happy, always (alongside meeeee!!! obviously :-))

Your Boo,

Jaini Don

PS ~~Ex~~ Excuse my handwriting, my hands were freezing because of the AC and excuse the flow of the letter, it was written in one go..